Poetry.

In the Fall.

O Autumn, with thy dying smile!
So faint, so sad, and yet so sweet
Amid the strewings at my feet,
By pattering nut and broken shell,
I feel the secret of thy spell,
The living year in full retreat—
Forever.

Refurnished by the last week's rains
The fields recall the green of spring:
The hills describe a sharper ring;
The dews in diamonds drench the plains;
The leaves crave distance in the lanes:
The thrush is mute, the hedgerows sing
In silver.

Pale, like the fading forest hair,
The slanting sunbeams struggle through,
The sky is of a tearful blue;
A pensive essence fills the air;
And, with pathetic sweetness fair,
The wan world seems to wave adieu—
Forever.

The cattle browse along the lea;
The piping robin haunts the lanes;
The yellow-turning woodland wanes;
The apple tumbles from the tree;
And Autumn, ranging through, links me
To Nature,
O pensive and poetic year,
What is the secret of thy power,
Whereby my poesy would flower
Between a radiance and a tear?
And yet I find no language here
To paint what trembles to the hour—
Within me!

O Eden-world of hill and green,
And distant gleams of slumbering blue;
I find no lyric language true
To paint the shadowed and seen;
O infinite, touching ties,
In vain thy spirit peeps between!
The sublimities that lie in you
Evade me.

Selected Story.

The Determined Choice.

"REMEMBER, WIFE, I DID NOT COAX YOU."

"Do you wish to speak to me Mrs. Harvey?" said Mr. Wentworth to his housekeeper, as he glanced up from the morning paper and saw her slowly and deliberately arranging the sideboard, and wiping a few imperceptible specks of dust from the glasses.

"Ahem! ahem! Yes, Mr. Wentworth, if you please."

"Well, Mrs. Harvey?"

He laid down the paper, knowing the good woman to be usually rather prolific in her speeches, but this morning she came suddenly to the point.

"If you can spare me, sir, I should wish to leave your service."

"To leave! And Aimee—Miss Rochelle—so lately returned."

"Why, you see, sir, when Miss Aimee was at school, and only here during the vacation, it was another matter; but now she has come to reside with you, and is quite a grown-up young lady."

"What can have occurred, Mrs. Harvey? I had hoped you looked upon my house as your home."

"Thank you, sir," and Mrs. Harvey smiled at the implied compliment; "and I shall be sorry to inconvenience you; but, of course, Miss Aimee will in future keep the keys and give the orders, and I never was used to have a lady over me, be she ever so nice; so, if you please, Mr. Wentworth, I prefer to leave."

"Certainly; by all means, Mrs. Harvey."

And it was settled that the housekeeper should resign her trust upon that day week.

The pleasant morning room opened by a glass door on the lawn, and trained around and overshadowing the panes, mingled a clustering rose and fragrant honeysuckle; but brighter and sweeter even than they was the fair young face that peeped within. Then Aimee Rochelle entered, her hands filled with the flowers she had gat hered.

"Oh, dear guardy!" she cried, "I feared you would coax her to remain!"

"What! coax a woman, Aimee! That is a species of argument I would not resort to with you; though I fear that the pleasure of your coming home will be lessened until we can replace her, for Bridget is young and inexperienced. But don't trouble yourself about Mrs. Harvey; Bridget and I shall go on famously."

If Mr. Wentworth did not approve of the coaxing system, his ward was of another opinion, for she went into the kitchen and begged Mrs. Harvey to let he make the day's desert, and also, under superintendence, some excellent cake, for which the housekeeper was justly celebrated, and she charged Bridgett to allow nothing in the culinary preparation to escape her notice.

And so the week passed on, until, one morning Mrs. Harvey's trunks were all in the hall, ready corded, and she—her hand full of fresh, crisp notes—was courteesying and smiling her way out of Mr. Wentworth's study.

"Ah, then," exclaimed the honest, outspoken Irish girl, "and may her shadow never darken our doors again! I am glad she is gone, Miss Aimee; it is yourself I would rather have any day for the mistress."

"You won't find me a hard one, Bridget. But will you do me one favor? Please to call me very early every morning, and we will have a nice breakfast ready for my guardian. I do not wish him to discover the difference in our housekeeping."

"Indade, miss, and I will. But, sure, the master does not know how little Mrs. Harvey did after I had been here a month. Oh—saving yer presence—she was a desatful old Jezebel!"

Aimee rose early, and breakfast was ready at the usual hour, and with pleasure she observed her gardian glance over the table as she listened to his praise of their achievements.

"What excellent coffee! And really, Aimee, these biscuits are superior to Mrs. Harvey's."

Then seeing him take up his paper, she tripped into the garden for her morning flowers.

"Dear, happy child!" cried Herbert Wedtworth, as with a sigh, he watched her flitting, like a butterfly, from tree to tree.

It only seemed the other day since he had led her away a little weeping girl from the bedside of her dying father, who confiding the young orphan to his friend's eare, in trust and hope turned his face to the wall and then resignedly fell asleep.

Herbert Wentworth was at that time a of twenty-eight. Not ten years had passed, and more than one silver thread mingled in his dark hair, and the child had become a lovely girl of eighteen.

"How shall I bear to part with her?" thought Herbert. "How endure this darkened home when the sunshine of her presence no longer gladdens it?"

Aimee returned with her flowers, she had suddenly checked the cherry ne song she was singing, upon observ the sad, grave smile with which her gadian greeted her.

"What is the matter, guardy? Do miss anything this morning?" she ask glancing around, her thoughts reverti to her new duties.

"Yes, Aimee, my morning kiss. I think you have forgotten that lately."

She took her flowers and laid them gently on his lips.

"This is better than a mortals kiss, for the moon looked down upon them all night while the faries danced around, and then hid under their soft leaves, leaving sweet, dewey kisses there for you."

Herbert Wenthrope opened his arm to clasp her, but Aimee had fled aw

Three happy but uneventful months glided by. The beautiful Amiee Rochell had rejected lovers innumerable.

At length one, more persevering than his rivals, importuned Mr. Wenthrop for the hand of his lovely ward.

The day he so dreaded had arrived his cherished bud had expanded into dower, and other eyes beheld its beautie and other hands would fain gather it to transplant it in their own homes.

"This letter concerns you my child, said Herbert to his ward. "It is fro young Frank, as he is called. He ask my consent to address you, and my influence in his favor. He is wealth but you, Aimee, will not be portionle The money that your father left h been well invested, and when I render up my trust—"

"Mr. Wentworth," she exclaimed never let the subject of money be mad between you and me."

"What answer then shall I give?" said her gardian.

"Tell Frank Sinter I decline his offer."

"Pause well, my dear, it is a most eligible one. He is of good family, bears a irreproachable name—"

"Do you wish me to marry this young man?"

She looked up at him, and as she wait ed his reply, the color of her cheek faded to an ashen whiteness.

"Yes, for I think it most suitable, and thinks not you will be happy."

"Happy! Do not mock me with the word."

Aimee clasped her raised hand whe she spoke; then, casting upon him a reproachful glance, she hurriedly left t room.

Herbert Wentworth started. In the harsh, impotous tones, he hardly recognized the sweet voice of Aimee, nor her wild, despairing attitude her chi like gentleness.

"What can it mean?" he cried; a after some moments of wondering thought, he slowly and reflectively followed his ward to her own little sitting room.

She was not there; but on the tab was her open desk, and spread over it were letters as if hastily torn from the enclosure—his own letters, which she ho treasured. He looked again. There was a small likeness of himself. Aimee must have painted that from memory.

"Oh, my God!" he exclaimed "that Thou, then, such deep happiness in store for me?"

A white figure was slowly pacing the garden in "the dark walk," as Aimee named it, and which she said she hated for its gloom. And now, with drooping head and arms hanging listlessly down the poor girl sought its shade.

"Aimee, my child!"

"Did you call me, sir?"

He raised the little cold, trembling hands, and held them in his own.

"Is your old love and friendship broken, that you speak to me with such formality?"

"If—if—I marry Frank—it will be proper," she sobbed.

"You shall not marry him! I cannot part from you, my darling—my happiness—the angle of my house!"

"Then you do not wish me to leave you?"

"Do I wish it? Would I banish the blessed sunshine from my path?"

The blush returned to the fair cheeks, which she laid down upon Herbert's arm.

"Aimee," he continued, "I love you too fondly for my own peace, and for that cause I urge this marriage."

She looked up proudly and bravely.

"And, I, Herbert Wentworth, cared for none but you in the wide world. And ah! when I rushed away to destroy your dear letters—and—well, never mind what else—it almost broke my heart."

"But, Aimee, think well before you decide—before you accept an old fellow whose hair and beard are already turning gray."

"Herbert, you are not old; you never will be old in my eyes, and you are far handsomer than Frank Slater—and I—love you, dear Herbert."

She could say no more, for his kisses closed her lips.

And now, when they speak of their old days of their brief courtship, Herbert will sometimes add:

"Remember, little wife, I did not coax you."

But Amiee only laughs as she replies:

"Ah! yes it was too bad. I was compelled to do the coaxing."

But Aimee Wentworth never regretted her choice, and a happier couple does not exist in all this fair, broad land.

Miscellaneous.

Daughters of the Rich.

No class of women are more to be pitied than the daughters of rich men, who having real energy of character, have no vent for it, because fashion requires them to sit still and fold their hands. It does not require this of their brothers. They are applauded when they grow restive under it, and breaking their bonds interest themselves in a manly way in something besides mere pleasure. But let a daughter try it, and immediately the awful Mrs. Grundy starts up, and her croquet ground, and her French dressmaker, and bids the daughter of the millionare still her pulses, and close eyes and ears to the possibilities, and think of nothing but husband hunting. We never can know how many real heroines are behind this wall of restriction, till what is called "adverse" fate sets them free to stand upon their feet, and to use their own hands, and know their own powers which had been dwarfed almost to extinction by inaction.

Chief Justice Gray of Massachusetts said to be one of the greatest men living. He stands six feet four inches high, weighs 250 pounds, has a fine figure, travels his circuit on horseback, and—attention, ladies—is a bachelor.

In Defence of Mothers-in-law.

As a great deal is said and written against mothers-in-law, it is refreshing to to find one man who can say something in their defence. This singular character belongs to Fort Wayne Ind: "I am not a mother-in-law myself, but my wife's mother is, and for her sake I want to say something in behalf of that much abused class of relatives. Since it has become fashionable to rail at mothers-in-law in the public press and in private life, the great American people, with that keen sense of humor peculiar to themselves—and for the possession of which a good many of them ought to be hanged—consider it intensely funny as well as fashional. I don't. I recognize the fact that my children's grandmother, who is one of their dearest and truest friends on earth, has a claim upon my affections too. There are doubtless exceptions to this rule, as there are to most rules under the sun, but in the main mothdrs-in-law are entitled to all the respect they receive and a good deal more of the same sort. Generally the man who speaks insultingly to his mother-in-law would not be averse to whipping his wife when occasion offered, or is mean enough to accept his mother-in-law's kindly offices when the children are down with the measles and gives her the cold shoulder afterward. At least it will be safe to say that the man who insults his mother-in-law by word or deed will bear watching."

Unconscious Influence.

It is not they alone who are trying to corrupt others, who exert an influence. The doors of your soul are open on others, and theirs on you. You inhabit a house that is well nigh transparent, and what you are within you are ever showing yourself to be without, by signs that have no ambiguous expression. If you had the seeds of a pestilence in your body, you would not have a more active contagion than you have in your tempers, tastes and principles. Simply to be in this world, whatever you are, is to exert an influence,—an influence compared to which mere language and persuasion are feeble. Is your example harmless? Is it ever on the side of God and duty? You cannot doubt that others are continually receiving impressions from your character. As little can you doubt that you must answer for these impressions. If the influence you exert is unconsciously exerted, then it is only the most sincere, the truest expression of your character. Do not deceive yourself in the thought that you are, at least, doing no injury, and are therefore living without responsibility. By a mere look or glance, not unlikely, you are conveying the influence that shall turn the scale of some one's immortality. Dismiss, therefore, the thought that you are living without responsibility; that is impossible. The true philosophy of doing good is, first of all and principally, to be good—to have a character that will of itself communicate good. There must and will be active effort where there is goodness of principle, but the latter we should hold to be the principal thing, the root and life of all.—Horace Bushell.

A Great Benefactor.

Parton says, in his interesting history of the Sewing Machine, written for the Atlantic Monthly, and published in its May number of 1867: "In the year 1854, after a long trial, Judge Sprague, of Massachusetts, decided that 'the plaintiff's patent is valid, and defendant's machine is an infringement.' The plaintiff was Elias Howe, Jr., the real infringer, I. M. Singer." Judge Sprague further observed that "there is no evidence in this case that leaves a shadow of doubt that for all the benefit conferred upon the public by the introduction of a Sewing Machine, the public are indebted to Elias Howe, Jr." How great that benefit is we can form some idea when we consider the vast amount of work necessary to be performed by the needle, and remember that of all the various branches of labor it is the most wearing upon the human system.

The Howe Machine is now offered to the public on such easy terms that persons of the most limited means can procure one with but slight economy, and thus the benefit conferred by the great inventor, at first confined to a few, is now within the reach of the poorest.

Bear in mind the "Howe" is the only Machine offered at, give dollars per month and at New York prices.

Woman's Power for Good or Evil.

One gifted and beautiful woman, if wrongly disposed, can work more evil in society, can scatter more seeds of corruption and death, than, with their uttermost efforts, a score of men. Her capabilities for good in the different departments of morals are equally great, and in such proportion to her powers, both for good and evil, must be her condemnation, if she is false to her holy stewardship. Society cannot be destroyed if woman is true, nor safe if woman is false. Besides, society shows no unequal discrimination in regard to this particular class of offences. The rule applies to all. A profane woman, a drunken woman, a female thief or murderer always excites a greater horror and disgust than if the crime had been committed by a man. And this is right, and it will be an evil day for this world when woman in her sin excites no more abhorance than a man.

Domestic Happiness.

The great end of prudence is to give cheerfulness to those hours that splendor cannot gild, and acclamation cannot exhilarate. Those soft intervals of unbended amusement, in which a man shrin

MUTUAL DEPENDENCE.

The effects of the financial stringency have not yet been felt among any class of people so severely as among those engaged in manufacturing enterprizes, and the eastern papers inform us that quite a number of establishments have closed, while many others have materially reduced their force, for the reason that currency could not be procured with which to meet the weekly and monthly pay rolls. This is a state of affairs that is greatly to be deplored, in view of the fact that winter is near at hand, and the men thus thrown out of employment have in but the fewest number of instances any surplus of earnings with which to keep the "wolf from the door."

It has been repeatedly shown that the scarcity of money just now is but the result of a careless scare among the people who have withdrawn their balance from the banks and hoarded them away, thus wiping out of existence, for the time being, just so much of the circulating medium of the country. While it remained in the hands of the bankers it could be made available for the purposes of trade, manufacturing and other enterprizes, but as soon as depositors became sufficiently scared to induce them to check it out and hide it away, just so soon was it felt in all the varifications.

This untoward action upon the part of the people shows how impartial is any one community when compelled to stand alone, and how mutually dependent all are. The panic comes; the people are well nigh scared out of their senses; they withdraw their deposits and hoard them up; the banks find themselves compelled to refuse accomodations to manufacturers and shippers; working men are consequently thrown out of employment; farmers find no ready market for their produce because of the scarcity of money, and all trades and industries become more or less paralyze d.

It is gratifying to know that we have not in Elizabeth City felt the results of the panic so severely as in many places, and this is altogether owing to the fact that our people have unbounded confidence in the solvency and stability of our Banks. These institutions, while they felt the effects of the prevailing stringency, have been in no wise endangered because their securities are first class, and their means abundant. Of course they have suffered from their receipts from abroad, but this is only temporary. The people hereabouts have rearlized how dependent they are upon each other, and the effect of that realization has saved us from ruin.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Viewed in its simplest aspect, a bank is the repository of the money of other persons. Banking is principally the business of establishing a common fund for lending money, discounting notes, issuing bills, receiving deposits, collecting the money on notes deposited, negotiating bills of exchange, etc. If the business of banking were limited to the keeping of deposits alone, it would be of no inconsiderable advantage to the community. The depositor would be relieved from the constant care of their money, and in numerous cases, from the trouble of banding it to the one to whom they desired to make a payment. Depositors find it convenient to deposit all their receipts, whether in cash or checks, in a safe place, where it is less likely to become the prey of burglars, and to draw their checks upon the bank whenever it is needed. Combined with the business of receiving deposits is that of lending out, thus a greater portion of the money deposited is given out in loan. "A million of money prudently lent out to be used, and which would have otherwise lain dead, either in small portions in the hands of owners or in one large hoard in the coffers of the banker, make the world one million the richer—or at least prevents it from becoming one million the poorer; for money so long as unused serves no end as a means of exchange." By this means the tradesman can extend his business; the manufacturer can buy material and pay his workmen, and we can readily see that the advantages accruing to society from the operations of banking are immense.

THE NORFOLK LANDMARK:—We took occasion to make favorable allusion a few weeks ago to this enterprizing daily. It is not only a live and spirited paper but it gives us a full and early synopsis of all the important news from abroad. Of course we do not endorse its politics, but with that exception we commend it to all our friends.

THE OCTOBER ELECTIONS.

The October elections are over and the result is now pretty well known. Being the "off year" in politics there was a light vote. In Pennsylvania the Republicans carry the State by a very handsome majority. In Iowa, notwithstanding the "Grangers" movement, the Republicans win as usual. In Ohio the three parties in the field mixed things considerably—the Democrats making apparent gains because of the indifference and staying at home of the Republicans. It is not unlikely the latter had a purpose in this; first to rebuke some unwise party leaders and secondly, to stimulate the Democracy with delusive hopes in order to induce them to keep up their organization to be beaten next year. In Oregon there was a special election for Congressman. The Democratic candidate is elected by a very small majority, but the election turned on personal rather than political considerations.

A family consisting of a widowed mother, three sons and two daughters were all married at once in Cincinnati last Friday.—Exchange.

Well that is a sensible family! Most others, utterly regardless of economy, would have cut up the mass of matrimony into at least six slices and scattered them over a space of as many weeks or months. But, seriously, if we had a family of that size we shouldn't like to see an endemic of love and marriage break out among them all at once and wipe out the entire lot in a single day!

The duty of the citizens is not wholly performed by the election of good men to office. Continued watchfulness over the public interest is needed. A cordial support of every measure tending to secure good government is an ever-present duty, which should never be neglected. The election of good men is an all-important duty; to render them the proper support is a duty no less binding.

The Treasury Department is now paying persons who were employed in taking the United States census in the Southern States in 1860, just previous to the breaking out of the rebellion, and who were deprived of their money on that account. Already $67,619 have been paid to such employes in sums ranging from $60 to $200.

There is some consolation in remembering that in 1857 a broken bank left its circulation as so much worthless paper in the hands of the people. Now a national bank may go down, but its circulating notes are as good as those of the government, because the government holds its own bonds as security. This is one great barrier to universal ruin.

The best proof that can be given the wisdom of the financial policy of the Government under a Republican administration, is found in the fact, that while the best stocks in the country were seriously affected by the recent panic, United States bonds were worth their face in gold.

The specie shipment from Liverpool to New York on Thursday was $1,220,000. With currency pouring into Chicago and coin into New York, and the west's grain bins full to overflowing, the times cannot be "hard" very long, if they are really so now.

The Presidents views on Finance.

LETTER TO A BANK PRESIDENT—SILVER TO SUPPLY A DEFICIENCY IN THE CIRCULATION MEDIUM.

President Grant's theories of finance during the past few days have been the subject of very general comment. The following letter, addressed to N. A. Cowdrey, President of the Continental National Bank in Nassau St., and bearing the signature of President Grant, will be read with interest, as it is an official expression of nearly the the same views which he recently defined to an Associated Press agent at Washington:

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 6, 1873.

MY DEAR MR. COWDREY: Your letter of the 20th ult. was duly received and read, as was your previous letters. Neither required an answer particularly, and hence I did not answer them at that time. Your last letter, however, contains one sentence that it seems proper I should reply to, that is as to an implied threat to the National banks contained in my letter to Messrs. Anthony and Clafflin. Nothing was further from my mind than a threat. My whole subject was to restore confidence to the public mind, and to give assurance that the Government would give all the aid in its power keeping in view at the same time the solvency of the National Treasury. You and all bank Presidents, know more about the condition of your banks than can possibly know. In turn, I, through the Secretary of the Treasury, know more about the financial condition of the Government, its ability to render aid, &c., than any person disconnected with the administraion of its affairs can know. I allude to the fact that the $40,000,000 reserve notes in the Treasury would be regarded as money in the Treasury subject to use, for the purpose of showing that the means are at hand to give the relief we promis. I do not believe the present panic will work to individuals half the injury it will work general good to the country at large. Our monetary system is the creation of necessity. It has no elasticity, but in other respects it is the best that has ever been devised. No one now distrusts the value of his paper dollar; on the contrary, it is seized and hoarded with the same avidity now that the gold dollar has been in former like adversities. The panic will call attention to the defects in our monetary system, and will no doubt, lead to legislation to relieve the want of elasticity.

This panic has brought greenbacks to about a par with silver. I wonder that silver is not already coming into the market to supply the deficency in the circulating medium. When it does come—and I predict that it will, soon—we will have a rapid stride toward specie payments. Currency will never go below silver after that. The circulation of silver will have other beneficial effect. Experience has proven that it takes about $40,000,000 of fractional currency to make the small change necessary for the transaction of the business of the country. Silver will gradually take the place of this currency, and, further, will become the standard of values, which will be hoarded in a small way. I estimate that this will consume from $200,000,000 to $300,000,000, in time, of this species of our circulating medium. It will leave the paper currency free to perform the legitimate functions of trade, and will tend to bring us back where we must come at last, to a specie basis. I confess to a desire to see a limited hoarding of money. It insures a firm foundation in time of need. But I want to see the hoarding of something that has a standard of value the world over. Silver has this; and if we once get back to that our strides towards a higher appreciation of our currency will be rapid. Our mines are now producing almost unlimited amounts of silver, and it is becoming a question, "what shall we do with it?" I suggest here a solution that will last for some years, and suggest to you bankers whether you may not imitate it; to put it in circulation now; keep it there until it is fixed, and then we will find other markets. The South and Central American countries have asked us to coin their silver for them. There has never been authority of law to do so. I trust it will now be given. When it is given it will be more than the equivalant of becoming exporters of articles of import. Orders will come for large amounts of coin. It will be all in silver, while payments are not necessarily so. We become the manufacturer of this currency with a profit, and will probably secure a portion of our pay in the more precious metal I have thought much about the recommendations I should make to Congress, and have changed my mind slightly in regard to banking laws since I last had the pleasure of a personal interview with you. It is not necessary to state what those changes are, because they may undergo further modification. I shall give to the subject, however, my sincerest thoughts, and will court the views of others.

I have written this hastily, but if it calls forth any views you would like to express, I will be glad to hear them.

Yours truly,
U. S. GRANT.

SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH.

Obstruction of nasal passages, discharge falling into throat, sometimes profuse, watery, acid, or thick and tenacious, mucous, purulent, bloody, putrid, offensive, etc. In others a dryness, weak or inflamed eyes, ringing in ears, deafness, ulcerations, scabs from ulcers, voice altered, nasal twang, offensive breath, impaired smell and taste, etc. Few only of above symptoms likely to be present in any case at one time.

To cure—Take Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery earnestly, to correct the blood and system, which are always at fault, also to act specifically, as it does, upon the diseased glands and lining membrane of the nose and its communicating chambers. The more I see of this odious disease, the more positive is my belief that if we would make treatment perfectly successfully in curing it, we must use constitutional treatment to act through the blood, as well as a soothing and healing local application. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy, when used warm and applied with Dr. Pierce's Nasal Douche, effects cures upon "common sense," rational and scientific principles, by its mild, soothing and healing properties, to which the disease gradually yields, when the system has been put in perfect order by the use of the Golden Medical Discovery. This is the only perfectly safe, scientific and successful mode of acting upon and healing it.

So successful has the above course of treatment proven that the proprietor offers $500 reward for a case he can not cure. All the means sold by Druggists. R. V. Pierce, M. D., Proprietor, Buffalo, N. Y.

Can a Married Woman be a Bankrupt?

This much disputed question has recently received adjudication in Indiana by Judge Gresham, of the United States District Court at Evansville. The case was a proceeding in bankruptcy brought by Hays, Gibson & Co., of St. Louis, against Rachel Goodman, a married woman. The petition charged that Mrs. Goodman was the wife of Morris Goodman, and that for several years she had been engaged in business in her own name in Evansvill, Indiana; that she was indebetd to them in the sum of $487 27, and had committed an act of bankruptcy. The Court ruled that in accordance with the statutes of the State a married woman cannot engage in any business on her own account unless she have separate property. The earnings of a wife not possessed of separate means go to the husband, and under such circumstances she cannot be adjudged a bankrupt.

PAIN-KILLER.

DEAR SIRS: During a residence of some ten years in Siam and China, as a missionary, I found your Pain-Killer a most valuable remedy for that fearful scourge the Cholera. In administering the medicine I found it most effectual to give a tea-spoonful of Pain-Killer in a gill of hot water sweetened with sugar; then, after about fifteen minutes, begin to give about a tablespoonful of the same mixture every few minutes until relief was obtained. Apply hot application to the extremities. Bathe the stomach with the Pain-Killer, clear, and rub the limbs briskly. Of those who had the Cholera, and took the medicine faithfully, in the way stated above, eight out of ten recovered.

REV. R. TELFORD, Missionary in China

DEAR SIRS: During a long residence in China I have used your valuable Pain-Killer, both in my own family and among the Chinese, and have found it a most excellent medicine. In the Summer of 1862 and 1863, while residing in Shanghai, I found it an almost certain cure for cholera, if used in time. Indeed, using it in a great many instances, I do not remember failing in a single case. For three years I have been residing in this place, more than fifty miles from a physician, and have been obliged often to fall upon my own resources in cases of sickness. The Chinese come to us in great numbers for medicine and advice. Though with no medical knowledge ourselves, the few simple remedies we can command are so much in advance even of their physicians, that we have almost daily applications. We allow them to come, because it brings us in contact with them and opens a door of usefulness. In diarrhea, colic, vomiting, cholera, coughs, etc., your Pain-Killer has been my chief medicine. Yours, very truly,

REV. T. P. CRAWFORD, Tungchow, China

Those using Pain-Killer should strictly observe the following directions:

At the commencement of the disease, take a teaspoonful of Pain-Killer, in sugar, and water, and then bathe freely across the stomach and bowels with the Pain-Killer clear. Should the diarrhea and cramp continue, repeat the dose every fifteen minutes. In this way the dreadful scourage may be checked and the patient relieved in the course of a few hours.

N. B.—Be sure and get the genuine article and it is recommended by those who have used the Pain-Killer for the cholera, that in extrem cases the patient take two (or more) teaspoonfuls instead of one.

The PAIN-KILLER is sold by all the Druggists and Dealers in Family Medicines.

Ex. Price, 25 and 50 cents and $1.

Cash! Cash!! Cash!!!

After this date I shall sell for CASH. I have made this change because I can no longer afford to sell on credit. I must sell for CASH because I can only buy for cash. I must sell for cash because parties who have had my goods will not pay. I must sell for cash because it is too much trouble to collect accounts and I must sell for cash because it is impossible to collect bad accounts. In making this change I am well aware that my sales will be curtailed; but I prefer to sell less and not be continually harrassed with an inability to collect accounts to meet indebtedness. I have tried plainly to explain my reasons for adopting the Cash system. Some of my customers pay well others do not, I cannot afford to carry the bad to save the good, as a whole I must discard all or accept all the conclusion is plain. I am engaged exclusively in the Drug Trade. I shall endeavor to keep a first class Drug Store. I shall purchase no pains to make it such; keeping pace with every modern improvement. I shall mark goods lower and shall use my best efforts to please. I shall endeavor to supply me customers with any goods not on hand in the shortest time possible. I am anxious to please and to sell you that please remember I sell for CASH.

THIS WEEK'S ADVERTISEMENTS.

We call attention to the following new advertisements in this issue.

Dr. Butt's Advertisement.
Two Hundred Dollars Reward.

Local and Personal

The report of the "Finance Committee" will be published in our next issue.

The house of SAMUEL HARRELL near Durant's Neck, was destroyed by fire one day last week.

Pamphlet copies of the Premium List for the Fair may be had, free of charge, on application at this office.

We sincerely regret to learn of the death of ROBERT J. WHITE, Esq., of Belvidere. The sad event occured on Sabbath morning last.

VERITAS is correct. "Some people have softening of the brain." But the world suffers more from those who have hardening of the heart.

The latest quotations from New York: Gold 108; Cotton 17¾. On Friday last Gold was down to 107, the lowest it has been for eleven years.

Bertie county is beginning to manifest considerable interest in our railroad. It will prove of immense advantage to the people of that county.

Coming events cast their shadows before. Shadows plainly indicate that some event is coming, Watch for a future issue of the NORTH CAROLINIAN!

Capt. LYON, just opposite the CAROLINIAN office, keeps on hand most splendid Oysters. The way he "does 'em up" is appetizing, to say the least. We speak from actual test.

A daring burglar entered SALOMONSKY'S store on Sunday night and carried off a number of goods. The night being stormy, was favorable for his operations.

There will be a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Albemarle Agricultural Society at the CAROLINIAN office on Friday of this week at 3 o'clock P. M. A full attendance is desired.

Through the efforts of Hon. C. L. COBB, a mail route has been established and opened from Roanoke Island to Hatteras. This is the first time the people in that section ever had mail facilities of this kind.

We are glad to see the action taken by the County Commissioners in reference to our public roads. They have long been neglected and in many parts of the county are in a bad condition. We now believe they will be attended to.

The foliage upon the trees is gradually beginning to take on a variety of colors. Yellow, crimson, drab and various other hues are represented. These tinges upon the leaves of the trees, though beautiful, like the hectic flush upon the consumptive's cheek, indicate death and decay.

A sad case of drowning occured at Hertford on Monday morning last. EDWARD SKINNER, aged about 19 years and a colored man named ABM. WHEDBEE went out in a small boat to sail on the Perquimans river. On reaching some four miles down the river the boat capsized and the young men were drowned. At this writing the body of SKINNER has not been recovered.

The Federal Court is in session here this week, his Honor Judge BROOKS presiding. The attendance is not very large, and there is not a heavy Docket. The Plymouth Post office robbery case, occuring in January last, is on trial. Among the distinguished strangers in attendance are R. C. BADGER Esq., of Raleigh, and Col. THOS. B. LONG, of Salisbury. The United States Marshal is represented by J. H. HILL Esq., who is a very popular and efficient officer.

Not a week passes that we do not get complaints about the mail arrangements from Elizabeth City to Currituck county. Under the present management their mail matter is from eight days to two weeks old before they receive it. They have petitioned and we have tried our best to aid them—thus far without success. We are assured, however, that the matter will be attended to in December.

There is one thing, among others, we specially commend in our present Board of City officers, and that is the spirit they manifest in favor of improvement. It costs money it is true, but what of that, the improvements made are permanent—will not have to be gone over again for years. Hence, in the end, it will be money saved. And then how much it adds to the comfort of those who travel our streets as well as to the general appearance of our town.

The latest suggestion in reference to premiums is that the Managers of the Fair should offer $10 to the man who could show the longest nose! As this is made by an anonymous adviser the thought has occurred, probably his nasal protuberance is of the elongated order and this fact has induced him to make the suggestion—he expecting to compete for the premium. We think we can say for the Managers that were such a premium offered it would be coupled with the condition that men given to poking their noses into other peoples affairs must not apply, except as a joint stock arrangement, for when a man owns a nose that is mixed up with the affairs of other people, it can hardly be called his personal property.

Agriculture, in its proper and most comprehensive signification, is a noble calling. It is first in nobleness, because it is first in necessity. It is to Agriculture that we owe our present existence in the world. Without food we cannot live. Money, gentility, fortune or extravagance, cannot sustain life. Blot out Agriculture as an employment, and you blot out the human race. It is to promote this great interest, to popularize it in this section that the Albemarle Agricultural Society was formed. For this object the Fair has been organized and will be held.

Capt. W. A. HARNEY has been unanimously elected Chief Marshal of the Fair. It is a popular selection—one endorsed by the entire community. He will prove emphatically the "right man in the right place." With his accustomed modesty he at first declined the honor so unexpectedly thrust upon him, but finding that it was a universal wish that he accept, he has finally done so! With his two efficient Assistants—LUTHER C. DASHIELL and CINCINNATUS A. NASH—the public will have the assurance that everything will pass off quietly and satisfactorily.

We see that President PORTER, of Chaple Hill, besides being a ripe scholar is an inventor. The result of his genius in this direction is an "Adding Machine," which is thus described:

A revolving plate, confined between a stationary base and faceplate, and carrying a loose series of numbered concentric rings with a peculiar decimal trip, moved by projecting pins on an exterior flange. The stationary face-plate is provided with suitable reading-openings with a set of figures near its outer edge, and with two sets of engaging-dogs for each ring—one of them for bringing the rings all to zero at the ridial window, and the other set for separately acting on the particular ring under operation.

Rev. W. W. KENNEDY having resigned his office as President of the Albemarle Agricultural Society, GEO. W. CHARLES Esq. has been elected to fill the vacancy. The resignation of Mr. KENNEDY does not, we are happy to announce, sever his connection with the Society. He remains on the Executive Committee and is one of its most practical, active and efficient members. He feels a deep interest in the Fair and is ably contributing to make it a success. His successor, Mr. CHARLES, is one of our oldest and most highly esteemed citizens, has been all his life a practical farmer and is earnestly working to promote the interests of the Association of which he is now the official head.

The subscription to the Railroad must now be closed without delay. We have just seen another letter from the Contractor of the Company and we see that he is getting restive—is anxious to begin work. The Company is especially desirous to have the road from Norfolk to Edenton in operation in time for next year's crops. To do this they feel it important there should be no delay in getting at the work of construction. The only thing in the way is the delayed subscriptions. Within ten days after these are properly closed up the Contractor will be here with a corps of Engineers to permanently locate the road and begin work upon it.

It is high time this Albemarle region began to look to her own interest. Quite too long she has been the hard working producer, giving her profits to the capitalists and manufacturers of the North. Indeed the latter have quite naturally looked upon her as an orange to be sucked, a goose to be plucked, a sponge to be squeezed, a resevoir to be everlastingly drawn from. Will our people submit and patiently allow these operations to go on? Unless they change their entire policy there can be no help for it. Until they adopt a system of diversified industries and encourage the building of manufactories they must remain mere producers dependent for market and prices fixed by those who for the past quarter of a century have been squeezing and plucking them. Let us have the railroad and manufactories and diversified industries will follow. Then instead of being so helplessly dependent this section can become the most independent of any we are acquainted with in the United States.

Our approaching Fair is growing in favor and interest. It is a home institution, designed for the benefit of all our people, and if properly patronized cannot fail to do them all good. It will be a meeting of our Stock Growers, Farmers, Truckers and Mechanics. They will compare notes, see what each other are doing, learn much that will be of use to them and go away prepared to do still better next year. And, too, those who contribute to fill up the Household and Fancy Article Departments will form pleasant acquaintances, learn practical lessons and go home feeling that the efforts they have made were not without profit. Then let no one feel diffident about bringing of what they have. Do not let the fear that somebody else may have a little better article, but let all bring the best they have, and if they do not succeed in getting premiums they will have the satisfaction of feeling that they did their part to aid this home enterprize by helping to fill up its departments and adding to the variety of articles on exhibition.

NATURAL REMEDY—PROTECTED THE SYSTEM.—The human body is a machine, and therefore cannot endure forever; but, like a watch or a sewing machine, it will last much longer if properly regulated and duly repaired, than if no pains were taken to keep it in order. The great object of every one who desires a long and healthy life should be to put his body in a condition to resist the life threatening influences by which we are all more or less surrounded; and no judicious and corrective at present known so specially answers this purpose as the vitalizing tonic, which, under the unpretending name of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has been for more than twenty years the standard tonic of America. In crowded cities where the atmosphere is contaminated with the effluvia inseparable from large populations; in marshy regions where the soggy soil reeks with miasma; on the prairies and in the forests, where every fall the air is tainted with exhalations from rotten weeds and grasses, or decomposing leaves—in short, in every locality where the malaria exists, this powerful vegetable antidote is urgently needed. Fever and ague, bilious fevers, dysentery, congestion of the liver, jaundice, rheumatism, and all diseases which are generated by infected air, impure water, or sudden changes of temperature, may be averted by strengthening and regulating the system in advance with Hostetter's Bitters. Autumn is always a season of peril, especially to weak, susceptible organizations. Even the more vigorous are apt to be in some measure depressed by the humid atmosphere, loaded with deleterious gases produced by vegetable decay. The fall is period of the year when the renovation and regulation of the living machine is peculiarly important, and the Bitters should therefore be taken daily at this critical season.

Small Cows and Rich Milk.

In a recent address before the Vermont Dairy-men's Association, Alexander Hyde said: "As a general rule it may be stated that small cows give a milk richer in cream than that from larger cows. Thus the little Jersey gives more creamy milk than the large Durham—indeed, the ordinary milk of a Jersey is about equal in this respect to much that is sold in our cities as pure cream. Mr. J. J. Mackie, of Great Barrington, Mass., in whose word we can place implicit confidence, says that he has one Jersey whose milk is by actual test thirty-five per cent. cream, and that from five quarts of Jersey milk he can make one pound of butter. The small Kerry cow is said to be equal to the Jersey in its cream product, and the still smaller Brittany cowlet—for the kine of Brittany hardly deserve the name of cows, as they are only thirty-six to forty inches in height—is claimed to provide milk richer in cream than that of the Jersey or Kerry. On the other hand, the large Durham are not remarkable either for quantity or quality of their milk, though there are some strains of Durham blood that uniformly furnish good milkers; and the large Dutch cattle, while giving an abundance of milk, are rather famous as cheese than butter producers. The Ayrshires, which are but a medium between large and small cows, furnish also a milk which is fully up to the average for both butter and cheese. In the latter constituent we are inclined to think the Ayrshire milk is above the average. Perhaps we ought to say here that the difference between Jersey and Ayshire milk is not so great intrinsically as apparently. Jersey milk has a good emulsion, that is, the cream rises rapidly and easily. In this respect it is like men of fluent speech. They can tell all they know, and sometimes pass for more knowledge than they are worth. The cream of Ayrshire milk is more slow in rising, and seldom rises perfectly, so that if a pan of Jersey skim milk is compared with Ayrshire skim milk the former is watery and innutritious, having parted with its cream, while the latter is white and valuable from the cream and casein which it contains. As the virtue of milk, so far as muscle forming is concerned, is concentrated in the casein, Ayrshire milk is intrinsically fully equal to Jersey.

Decayed Turnips as Manure.

A valued correspondent furnishes us with some interesting facts relative to growing turnips as manures for grain. It so happened that the owner of the piece of turnips in question was from home at the time the first snow fell, and for some time afterwards, consequently there was no opportunity of harvesting the crop, and it was left in the ground, and as a matter of course all rotted on the land. The following spring oats were sown on the same piece, which contained exactly three-quarters of an acre. At harvest the straw was so heavy the crop could not be cradled, and had to be reaped. After threshing the quantity was carefully measured, and the yield of good clean oats was found to be exactly seventy-six bushels, or at the rate of a trifle over one hundred bushels an acre. This remarkable crop was again tested by re-measuring the oats, and as further proof, also re-measuring the land. The next year the same piece of land was sown with spring wheat, and again the value of the decayed turnips was verified by a large crop of wheat being obtained; there being nearly twenty-seven bushels to three-quarters of an acre. For three following years the continued benefit of the decayed turnips was very apparent. The sort sown was the ordinary white variety, and the land was not manured, nor was the crop very heavy, as the turnips were not sown until July, and never hoed or thinned out, the seed was sown broadcast, and very thin, to avoid expense in subsequent cultivations. As we have many times before recommended, the land was harrowed at intervals of about three weeks, commencing the middle of April. This mode of cultivation attacks the weed when quite young and unable to withstand the constant stirring of the soil. Consequently, at the time the seed was sown, all weed seed had vegetated and was destroyed, and hoeing was unnecessary except to thin the plants, which, in this instance, was not done.—Canada Farmer.

Extract from an address by Dr. Munday before the N. E. Agricultural Society.

We cannot afford, gentlemen, to allow agriculture to pass into decadence. When the farming class shall be considered as an inferior class we have revived the disastrous distinctions of the middle ages. It is because the New England farmer has not been a serf or peasant that New England has become what she is. I doubt if a Republic could endure in any country where agriculture is not the prime industry. When wealth and culture and civic honors have been divorced from the soil of the country, the country itself will have sunk into lamentable debasement. For it cannot be denied that the forces that originated and secured for us our free institutions came as directly from the soil as the streams flow down from our native hills. The landholder in all civilizations has been a noble. A part of the country was his; his to love, to improve, to defend. Having rights himself, he was easily educated to regard the rights of others. Being a lord himself he could not become a slave. Calm of judgment, economic in expenditures, fervid in his patriotism, bringing to the discussion of every question the essence of all true scholarship. Strong common sense, regarding civic position as a duty, not as a sinecure, the early agriculturist of the country was, of all others, the very man to stake out the foundations of a temple, in which, when builded, liberty might gather and pour out her treasures upon all mankind.

A large number of English and French exhibitors at the vienna Exposition have made application to Mr. Garrettson, the American Commissioner, to have their goods transported from Vienna to Philadelphia, where they may remain in readness for the exhibition in the latter city in 1876.

George C. Hichcock, of New Preston, Conn., is reported to have a pair of turkeys that he refused $1,000 for, the gobler standing nine feet high, without boots, has feathers two feet long, and his gobble can be heard six miles.

In Big Valley, Cal., a twelve acre lot of wheat at 1 o'clock in the afternoon was green and vigorous, and at 3 o'clock its destruction was as complete as if 1.000 cattle had been through it; and that destruction was caused by an army of grasshoppers.

A fisherman of Easton, Pa., caught a black bass in the Delaware that had in his mouth thirteen hooks, with pieces of lines from a half to two yards in length attached to them.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE.

OF VALUABLE

NORTH CAROLINA LANDS,

FOR SALE BY

GEORGE D. POOL.

Real Estate Agent,

ELIZABETH CITY, N. C.

In presenting my list of lands and other properties for sale, I would say that no section of the United States offers such inducements to capitalists and emigrants, as this section of North Carolina. In longevity and healthfulness, it will compare favorably with any where; and in easy and cheap transportation of products to market, in pleasantness of climate in the sociability of the people, in great fertility and durability of soil, no section can excel it.

A railroad will soon be built to Norfolk, putting this place in direct communication by Rail, with the whole United States. This, together with our great fishing, farming and manufacturing interests, and certain early completion of already projected works of improvement for putting in nearer, cheaper and easier communication with the Ocean, will render this one of the most important commercial, and manufacturing points on the Southern country.

A desirable house and lot in the town of Elizabeth City on the corner of two principal streets, the principal one, and situated in the best business locality in the town. The lot contains about two acres of land, and the buildings consist of a fair dwelling three stories high, containing eight rooms, all in good order, another two story building with four rooms and pantries, dairy, smokehouses, stables, &c. The dwelling has a good cellar under it. There is room on the front lot to erect two good stores, and they would occupy the best stand in the town for merchandize.

A farm of 700 acres in Pasquotank County 10 miles from town, with fine two story dwelling, large barn, kitchen and other outhouses; as also, two other dwellings, barns and other houses at different points on the farm. This farm is all cleared but 150 acres, is free from swamps and other waste land, and is well adapted to raising corn, wheat, cotton, oats, &c. The price is 14,000 in easy payments.

A farm of 500 acres in Pasquotank County, 6 miles from town, and one mile from the River, with good new dwelling built in modern style, barn, stables, four tenant houses scattered over the farm, fine water, &c. This farm is situated on the most public road in the County, has 300 acres cleared and balance in splendid pine, oak, cypress, maple, sweet gum, and other valuable timber. It is peculiarly adapted to raising cotton, $50 per acre, net, having been realized on a part of it this year in cotton. It also grows corn, wheat, oats, and other crops well. Price $12,000 in easy payments.

A valuable vacant lot in the town of E. City containing a half square, on the principal street in the town immediately opposite Court House quare. Has an iron fence in front, fine shrubbery, and is near the large new Hotel justerected, Price $2,000 in easy payments.

Also two fine farms in Pasquotauk county, 10 miles from E. City, within half mile of church, school house and post office. One tract contains about 400 acres, with fair buildings and mostly cleared, and the other contains 300 acres, with good two story dwelling, barge barn, and other outhouses, both are offered at $20 per acre, one third cash, balance in one and two years.

Three farms—one of 100 acres, one of 80 acres and one of 190 acres, within two miles of town, mostly cleared land. Price $20 per acre for each tract—payments on easy terms. Also many other valuable farms and town lots too numerous to mention.

BANKRUPTCY.

THE FIFTY PER CENT. CLAUSE.

As there seems to be a misunderstanding in regard to the effect of the provision of the Bankrupt Act, commonly called the 50 per cent. clause, we publish the following extracts from the Act:

The second clause of the thirty-third section as amended by the Act of July 27, 1868, provides "that no discharge shall be granted to a debtor whose assets shall not be equal to fifty per centum of the claims proved against his estate, which he shall be liable as the principal debtor, unless the assent or writing of a majority in number and value of his creditors to whom shall have become liable as principal debtors who shall have proved their claims, filed in case at or before the time of hearing application for discharge.

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled—that the proviso of the second clause of the thirty-third section of said act as amended by the first section of act in amendment thereof, approved July 27, 1868, shall not apply to those debts from which the bankrupt seeks a discharge which were contracted prior to January 1st, 1869.

The true meaning is not that a bankrupt must be able to pay fifty per cent of his debts, before he can obtain a discharge, as many believe; but that his estate, in the hands of his assignee, at the time of the discharge must be equal, to fifty per cent. of the amount of the debts.

1. That he owes as principal;

2. That have been proved against his estate in bankruptcy; and

3. That he has contracted since the 1st of December, 1868.

Or, if a majority in number and value of those who have proved their debts, to whom the bankrupt is indebted as principal, have contracted subsequent to Dec., 31, 1868, assent in writing to the discharge—such bankrupt may be discharged forever from all his debts.

If a debtor, owing three thousand dollars principal, twenty five hundred of which debtedness was contracted prior to January 1869, and five hundred subsequent to that date files his petition in bankruptcy, and his creditors prove against him, and there are no assets in the hands of the assignee, the petitioner will be entitled to a discharge; but it will be a bar only to the debts contracted prior to January 1, 1869.—If no creditors prove their debts discharge will be good against all debts, whether contracted before or after January 1869.

The practical effect in bankruptcy cases generally is, that creditors fail to prove their debts, finding it ordinarily unprofitable. They have had, in a large majority of instances, been to the trouble and expense of making proof without receiving any return. The 50 per cent. bugbear, therefore when viewed in the light of the law and common-sense, disappears.

EXEMPTIONS IN BANKRUPTCY.

The exemptions under the 14th section of the Bankrupt Act are as follows:

1. Household and Kitchen furniture to the amount not exceeding $500.00

2. Wearing apparel of Bankrupt and family.

3. Uniform, &c., if he has been a soldier in the United States Army.

4. Personal property of the value of $250 to be selected by the Bankrupt.

5. A Homestead and the dwellings and buildings used therewith, not exceeding in value the sum of $1000.00; or in lieu thereof, any real estate in any city, town or village not exceeding in value the sum of $1000.000.

6. The reversionary interest in the Homestead lands.

In laying off the Exemptions in the Districts, the Assignees are ordered to act in and abide by, any assignment of a homestead which has been made by a Sheriff under a State laws; or which has been assigned on the application of a debtor in accordance with the laws of North Carolina. Where no such assignment of homestead has been made, the assignee will proceed to set apart such homestead, and make the other exemptions according to the rules of the bankrupt Court.

The report of such exemptions when made by the assignee can be excepted to by the bankrupt or by any creditor, within twenty days after the allotment of such exempt property.

EFFECT OF THE DISCHARGE IN BANKRUPTCY UPON JUDGMENT.

It is the opinion of many of our best lawyers that the discharge in bankruptcy, discharges judgment debts existing against the bankrupt at the time of filing his petition, and therefore the liens existing by virtue of such judgments, upon homesteads are wiped out and cannot afterwards be enforced. In short that the practical effect of the discharge is to leave a man, whose homestead was encumbered by judgments, free from all his debts, of whatever nature, and the owner in fee simple of his homestead.

Again many lawyers, equally prominent in the profession, are of opinion that such will not be the effect of the discharge. That the homestead, will still be liable under the judgments and that when it determines under the State laws, the judgment creditor may enforce his lien and collect his debts.

To place this matter beyound doubt, the following rule has been adopted for the guidance of petitioners who are not willing to run any risk.

That the petitioning debtor may file his petition in the District Court, addressed to Hon. Geo. W. Brooks, asking that the judge, the creditor, or creditors, show cause why the debts existing in pursuance of their judgments should not be adjusted by said court, and their present value ascertain and fixed, and the amounts so ascertained, to be made the true value of such lien or liens by the decree or judgment of said District Court, in bankruptcy.

The right to adjust such liens, is exercised in pursuance of Sec. 1. of the Bankrupt Act.

FILING PETITIONS AND SCHEDULES.

Petitions and Schedules must be in duplicate. Petitioner should sign each sheet, except the schedules. It is not necessary to file copies of schedules that are not used. All papers in bankruptcy must be sworn to before a Register in Bankruptcy, U. S. Commissioner, or Clerk of the court.

The following deposit to secure costs is required at time of filing Petition. Register and Clerk $20, Messenger $5. Bankruptcy blanks can be had of M. B. Culpepper, Elizabeth City, prepared in sets for Two Dollars per set.
